

HE'S A TRUE MAN, HE SAYS

Scorned Lovemaking of His Friend's Wife, Cramer Testifies
Nicholas W. Cramer is one man who refused to listen to beguiling words of love. The more determined was he because the woman who uttered the terms of endearment was the wife of his friend, Harry Thalm Armstrong, an automobile manufacturer. Armstrong is suing for a divorce.

Cramer, who also is in the automobile business, lived at the Armstrong home. Armstrong told him that his wife had left him, and the two went in search of her, he testified yesterday. They found her in the hallway of an apartment house, where she was talking to a strange man, Cramer said. But Armstrong and his wife became reconciled at the time.

Subsequently on several occasions when he was alone in the house with his friend's wife, said Cramer, she told him of her love for him and suggested that they flee the country. Once she threatened that unless Cramer took her away she would shoot him. Then one day she called him on the telephone, and, as Cramer said, he thought Mrs. Armstrong was going to apologize.

Justice Hendrick wanted to know for what Cramer expected an apology. "For talking to me so," replied the witness. Instead of offering an apology Mrs. Armstrong had called up to tell Cramer that he would find her waiting for him. Then Cramer told Armstrong about the actions of his wife.

They followed her one night to the Hotel Cumberland, Cramer said, where she entered with a man. Justice Hendrick thought he had heard enough, and rejected her defense.

SPRINGS

New York State welcomes you to Saratoga Springs. The State owns and guarantees the famous mineral springs, now in official care. The waters are free, and the bathing facilities greatly improved for 1913.

Both health and pleasure are here. Every outdoor game—land or water—has an added zest, in our pure air.

And the social life of the hotels and cottages makes both days and evenings unusually pleasing.
